FOR SALE BY J. M. Frank. Wm. Green & Sons. L. Wiss.

The Victor is on a 120 acre tract lately leased and its development has just commenced. It is situated in the trend just south of the Syndicate and three-fourths of a mile north of the famous Shaw property which sold a few days ago for $125,000. Two wells, both productive, have aiready been sunk on the lease and the prospect is flattering for a splendid paying property.

In the same region is the Gayland property in which David Mulvane and other Topeka capitalists are interested. In all of these properties mentioned by name and hundreds of others oil is being pumped day by day.

Thinks the Standard Corporation Is Not Wholly Wrong.

Holton, Sept. 2.—M. M. Holton, Sept. 2.—M. M. Beck gives his impressions of the Chanute oil fleids, after inspection, in the Recorder as follows:

Kansas, following its time honored custom, has just presented to the country a boom town without a saloon and through the character of the southeast corner of the character of the southeast corner of the state from agricultural to industrial.

In the field there are plenty of other state from agricultural to industrial.

In the field there are plenty of other state from agricultural to industrial.

In this town of the saloonless born there is at least one other feature that varies from the popular notion. The state in the proposers tion in dwellings or business blocks, and no one seems to have lost his head in building public works beyond same evident needs. If 300 dwelling houses have been put up since winter they are all occupied today.

Another property of this same development company is the Klondike located in the river trend and occupying 15s scres. Several wells have been drilled in and the process is continuing. The company also holds the Victor property of which the secretary is Miss Emma Kelly who made a name for herself for energy and daring by alone invading the Alaskan gold fields three the first class.

Mixed Schools.

Parsons, Sept. 2.—J. R. Ransom, presiding elder of the African Methodist church announced that the candidates for state office who desire the negro vote must pledge themselves to maintain mixed schools for whites and blacks. If the pledge is refused Ranson says that a separate ticket will be placed in the field in the future.

The association of Kansas school boards is advocating the extension of separate school privileges to cities not in the first class.

Flour Sack Shortage.

The Rea-Patterson Milling company shut down last night on account of the shortage of sacks to put up their large production.

The mill is one of the largest in the west and is buying grain from all directions, but not much around this part of the state because of the cropheng short being short.

The men on the night shift last night found things shut down, so, of course, turned in to await the sacks.

The demand for flour is very heavy and the mills are running to their full capacity.—Coffeyville Journal.

Kansan After Trout.

Colorado mountains fishing for and catching trout. It's Monday evening. August 29, there are three of us, we are away from the railroad and we are catching all we can eat and some more. We got here Sunday and will stay another day—just one more day. It's cold and all that but when the trout are biting our readers must excuse us one more day; then we will hike for home. Colorado has had a wet summer and the mountains are as green as the prairies. Not many pligrims here this year. Too cold, too wet; then there is the World's fair. But Colorado is filling up with peotimes. The Kelly-Dennis company has a lease also in another quarter section lying aimost directly between the Syndicate and Victor wells and is preparing to develop it.

A few months ago it looked as if the building of the Santa Fe Central would not take place for some time yet, as Roswell and other points in the Pecos valley have been making a big fight to get the company to build into the Pecos valley country before building into El Paso, but the advantage to be gained by having a line into El Paso, especially after the opening of the coal fields at Hagan, were not to be overlooked and the company decided to come into El Paso and then, when found expedient, to build a line of railway into Roswell from Torrance.

SCHEMES TO CUT RATES. Railroads Find a Way to Evade the Law in Rate Cutting.

While none of the railroads is vio lating the injunctions restraining them from paying rebates to shippers or secretly cutting rates, yet considerable demoralization in rates of all classes of freight exists.

The roads have found that it is just as easy to cut a rate without violating the law or the injunctions. When any of them finds that it can secure a large amount of freight by making a reduced rate it simply and quietly files a tariff, quoting the cut rate with the commission, and by the time the other roads become aware of it the bulk of the business in question has been carried forward, and then there is a general row, other roads meeting the cut or trying to get even by making still lower rates. Business having been dull during the last few months, a great deal of this underhanded work has been going on.

system and the El Paso end—the Texas & Pacific. There is now a contract in existence between the Santa Fe and the Denver & Rio Grande, which keeps the latter line from building south of Santa Fe, but it can hook up with any new line that might be built. The building of this line and its being backed by the Denver & Rio Grande is of a geat deal of importance to El Paso, as it gives this city a direct connection, not only with the northwest and Colorado, but also connects El Paso with the large coal fields which are to be found in the vicinity of Durango, Col, and which the Denver & Rio Grande now serves almost exclusively. El Paso has long wanted a direct rail connection.
